WHEN IGNORANCE IS AMUSING

Our editorial of two weeks ago in which we playfully chided Dr. J. B. Gibson of Cooke's Church, Toronto, for his splenetic remarks about Jews, incidentally to his virulent attack on Communism, appears to have got under the reverend gentleman's skin. When the Toronto Telegram drew his attention to our remarks, his comment in reply sounded decidedly peevish. Apparently, Dr. Gibson is a serious-minded person and desires to be treated with tragic seriousness. We wish to assure the worthy cleric that we, ourselves, are not altogether frivolous. On occasion we are deadly sober. But really, we could not preserve a funereal mien when we saw the latest attempt of a very commonplace person to wax prophetic, and his antics of bandying about ancient banalities with the motions of one uttering new profundities. The "blah" about Communism, the rabid generalizations about the red taint of the Jewish people—can any ordinarily intelligent person listen to them now and pretend to be impressed? We will ask Dr. Gibson one or two simple questions, and if he will give decently satisfactory answers, we pledge ourselves to withdraw our bantering remarks and treat him with the respect which he will then deserve: Mr. Gibson, you profess to be an authority on Russian Communism—have you ever visited Russia, and observed the situation there with your own eyes? Have you, read the literature of and about Russia critically, impartially, objectively with a view to understanding the Russian phenomenon in its proper setting? Again, you generalize about the characteristics of the Jewish people—have you made an intensive and extensive study of Jewish literature, Jewish life, Jewish psychology? In Toronto there is a Jewish population of some forty thousand souls. They are an interesting group. Have you ever gone out of your way to meet them, to associate with them, to understand them? There are ministers in this city like Dr. Bland, Rev. Crossley Hunter, Dr. Cameron and Dr. Cody who from time to time come in contact with Jewish communal and cultural aspirations. We daresay that these gentlemen would be diffident about claiming authoritativeness on matters of Jewish psychology, even in the face of their occasional intercourse with Jews. Frankly, we have never come across you, Dr. Gibson, at any Jewish public gathering. We are not aware of your having in any way participated in Jewish life in this city.

How then, in all conscientiousness, can you pretend to be an authority on the spiritual or psychological traits of the Jewish people?

If you wish your public utterances on contentious subjects to be treated with deference, you must be able to satisfy the critical listener that you are an authority on the topics, possessed of information and knowledge not available to the ordinary person. Have you, Dr. Gibson, any information on Russia which is beyond the reach of the average man who reads the Toronto press and listens to an occasional lecture at, say, the Empire Club? Have you any special knowledge of the Jewish question which the man on the street does not possess? You are eloquent. You have a command of vigorous language. But do these qualities entitle you to special attention on matters with which you are only passably familiar?

You are a theologian. We may or may not agree with the attitude and creed of your school or theology. It happens that during our university career, the exigencies of our intellectual predilections brought us in intimate touch with theologians and theological students, and we are rather familiar with the niceties of the different theological schools. We may have our

OUR AMERICAN SUPERIORITY COMPLEX

Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath

Ever since we heard, along with many hundreds of other enthralled listeners, the impassioned and powerful address on the "Soviet's Challenge to Capitalism" delivered by our good friend and capable colleague, Rabbi Brickner, before the Empire Club of Toronto, and broadcast throughout the Province of Ontario, we have felt constrained to comment upon certain facets of his remarks with which we heartily disagreed and which, if left unchallenged, cannot but redound to the harm of world fellowship, no matter how enthusiastically and heartily his stirring address was received. There is no doubt that Rabbi Brickner strove to be objective and fair, and yet it was no mere accident nor misapprehension which caused all four Toronto newspapers to feature his address as a portrayal of the grave and impending threat to the world which lies in Russia's experiment. It was the glaring headline in one of our local papers to this effect that made us even more determined to reply. Then came our unexpected and most unhappy summons to the South, and under the stress of those tragic days, we were quite willing to forget the foibles and foibles of men. Sovietism, capitalism, the Toronto Globe and Rabbi Brickner's false emphasis and misplaced oratorical effects all faded into insignificance, and not a word would have found its way into these columns had not our eyes been opened, even during our sad mission, to the appalling and critical conditions existent upon our own North American continent; yet, in the very land wherein Rabbi Brickner preaches such woe, and yet finds cause to criticize and condemn conditions in Russia which, if he would but look more carefully about him, might be bettered in almost every respect not too many miles from us were sought and won.

Rabbi Brickner, in the course of his graphic delineation of the Russian situation, might well be pardoned for not describing the long queues of men and women slowly and patiently waiting for their daily rations. Such things could not be in those glorious lands of ours, to say the least. But wouldn't they? May I describe a scene which I witnessed but last week in the heart of the ostensibly prosperous state of Arkansas, the center of the cotton belt, the state overflowing with richest silt, the yields of which, of course, are pocketed by absentee landlords to save upon those "niggers" for whom Negro spirituals and sentimental songs are sung. Now for several consecutive years conditions in the Southwest have been going from bad to worse; crop failure has followed crop failure; the boll weevil has ravaged and devastated, and into the very souls of those courageous but poor dirt farmers, who finally last Fall a fairly decent crop of cotton was produced in spite of the fact that the despised Russians purchased from the United States over one hundred and seventy-five million dollars worth of her output, the price was up a meagre one and one-half cents a pound. And although farm relief was most promised in most vigorous campaigns, nothing as yet has been done until now, when in the face of actual starvation, the American Red Cross has been stirred into action and has brought to this Western of the scenes which Rabbi Brickner had chosen to proclaimed impossible. We saw long lines of men, white and colored, waiting from early morning until late afternoon for rations, beautiful in rations and a few pounds of seeds to plant their summer crops. So utterly poverty stricken are these farmers that they purchase even their seed, and now, after years of cruel procrastination, attention is to be given to

Marriages

Schacter-Vineberg

The marriage of Elca, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vineberg to Dr. Samuel Joseph Schacter, son of M. H. Schacter and the late Mrs. Schacter, took place quietly, Thursday, March 5, at 6 p.m., at Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue. Rabbi H. Abramowitz officiated. Miss Evelyn Benjamin sang "O Promise Me", accompanied by Mrs. Joseph Rosenbloom, of Sherbrooke, Que. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white bridal satin with train falling from the shoulders. The V-shaped, fitted bodice had a yoke of Chantilly lace and long sleeves with insertions of the same lace, finishing in a point over the hands. A stiffened lace peplum gave a distinctive touch to the gown. The veil of net extending beyond the train, was worn in cap effect, caught on either side with a cluster of orange blossoms. Slippers of white satin completed the costume and the bride carried a sheaf of calla lilies. Mrs. Phillip Lazare, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, was her only attendant. She was gowned in coral color chiffon, made on long fitted lines with very full skirt of semi-circular frills, worn with a black baku hat, shoes and gloves to match, and she carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas. Aaron Schacter was best man. Mrs. Joseph Rosenbloom, aunt of the bride, played the wedding march. Mrs. Thomas Vineberg, mother of the bride, wore a gown of black lace with black baku hat to match and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. L. Greenberg, of Ottawa, sister of the groom, was gowned in gold cloth made on Princess lines with hat and shoes to match and a corsage of red roses. A wedding dinner for the immediate family followed the ceremony. Later the bride and bridegroom left on their wedding trip to New York and Atlantic City, the former travelling in a green ensemble, black coat trimmed with fox, and black baku hat, shoes and bag to match. They will live for the present with the bride's parents.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, wore a white bridal satin gown, fashioned on long fitted lines. Her veil of tulle fell from a lace cap and clusters of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of calla lilies, roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. L. Shuter, mother of the bridegroom, wore a black lace dress, black hat and a shoulder corsage of roses. Mrs. G. Freedlander, sister of the bride, wore a black chiffon dress. Speaking in the Labor Temple Saturday night, he dealt briefly with the "apparent suppression of the right of university professors to express their private opinions," deplored the sorry plight of the University of Toronto, "where original thought was evidently being stifled when it was most needed by the whole country." The question of freedom of speech Mr. Heaps declared, not only affected Labor in Toronto, but even the University, which was something more than a Toronto institution when students came from all parts of the Dominion.

NEW YORK JEWRY IS BROKE!

Over eight hundred were present at the farewell dinner in honor of Einstein held in New York last week. This testimonial dinner was arranged in order to inaugurate the American Palestine Campaign. Judging from the radio broadcast and the newspaper reports, the speeches of Einstein, Wise and Warburg were splendid and inspiring. It was especially good to hear Einstein say — "auf wiedersehen." Would that the great scientist might return to us soon. But what a disappointing ring that was when one considers that only two hundred thousand dollars was given on that occasion for Eretz Yisroel. Certainly to have had Einstein address a gathering of nearly a thousand people and to obtain such a niggardly sum for Palestine, indicates that something is radically wrong with the New York Jewish community! Had the eminent scientist permitted himself to have made a broadcast in Hollywood—I am sure the movie magnates would have paid more than two hundred thousand for it! The honor and privilege of having had Einstein to inaugurate the Palestine Campaign should have brought a much larger sum for Palestine. But perhaps New York Jewry is really broke . . .

PROPHET OF ISRAEL

A Christian friend and an admirer of Judah L. Magnes draws my attention to a recent article in "The World Tomorrow" dealing with the fascinating life-story of the Dean of the Hebrew University of Palestine. The writer claims that Magnes has ever been the fearless prophet, the champion of human rights and that he is to-day one of the greatest of Jews: "A recent visitor to the Near East who has always regarded Magnes' views on social questions, on national and international problems, on war and treaties as dangerous and unsound to say the least, reported upon his return to this country that Palestine has already produced two great Jews — Pinchas Ruttenberg, the engineer, and Judah L. Magnes, of the Hebrew University. He added that if Palestine possessed twenty such men, neither England nor the Arabs could prevent Israel from realizing its aspirations in the land of its fathers."

IS BRITISH JUDAISM DEAD?

In the West London Synagogue Magazine for March we find the following candid judgment pronounced by an American Jew concerning English Judaism:

You ask me what opinion I have formed of British Jewry from my various visits to your country.

I speak not as a jingoist. I have never been accused of being an Americophile, yet you must admit that the future of Jewry rests with this country. England is at best going through her travail of a late parturition as far as Judaism is concerned. All the glamour of English Judaism with its long line of tradition and distinguished service could never compensate for its inherent weakness. It is decrepit and ready to collapse. This is not your fault and certainly not mine. It is a fact regrettable to all impartial observers. Even the liberal movement has had such a late start, in comparison with American Judaism, as to reduce its efficacy almost to nil in the light of the tremendous upheavals in the religious thought of the last few decades. American Judaism is far indeed from being in its prime. It has already grown hoary and wizened, and like all old people it babbles away in its shrill, tremulous voice. But English Judaism is dead. It is lying in state, and we are paying a last tribute to its beautifully embalmed corpse.

A JEWISH YOUTH SABBATH

At Temple Emanu-El last Friday Eve the young people were in charge of the entire service. The ritual was read by a youth, and in lieu of the regular sermon, two young men, college graduates, presented a symposium on "Whither Youth?" And judging from the frank religious utterances of these youths, the large attendance and the entire inspirational and spiritual atmosphere which prevailed — such an innovation as "Youth Sabbath" is worth while. It certainly gives the young people an opportunity to speak for themselves and offers them direct participation in congregational life. We recommend that "A Jewish Youth Sabbath" become an annual practice and part of every congregational calendar.

Young People's Sabbath was observed at Emanu-El last Friday evening. The ritual was read by Cyril B. Rei, President of Temple Centre. The Sabbath music was in charge of Gerver M. Brown and the Temple Choir and Harold Bulmer, of Toronto, played the violin. A symposium, on "Whither Youth?" was presented by David Jassby and Gerald Pickleman. Mr. Jassby pointed out that youth is condemned by the elders without a seemingly sympathetic understanding of youth's problems in a modern world. Youth to-day itself carried away by a post war psychology and hence indulged in the pleasures of life without having any spiritual anchorage. But youth to-day is finding itself in spite of the disenchantments and disappointments which the World War brought. Youth needs religion — a religion that is dynamic and vital. Gerald Pickleman dealt with the specific problem of Jewish youth and pleaded with the young men and women of Israel first to make a scientific study of Judaism. Youth in the studies Judaism will surely come to appreciate the heritage of Israel and will find that in essence Judaism is in consonance with the latest findings of science and philosophy. On the other hand Jewish youth must actively participate in the synagogue. The Jewish social clubs and fraternities are merely supplementary institutions. The synagogue is the only symbol of Jewish immortality." At the conclusion of the symposium Rabbi Stern welcomed the people and pointed out that the Young People's Sabbath will not become an annual institution in the Temple. A reception was held in the Lecture Hall.

IMMIGRATION LAWS PART MOTHER AND CHILD

The life story of Dorothy Cohen, eight month's old baby girl, is told in many thousands of typewritten words contained in two thick files of letters which March 9 were marked "closed" in the general offices of the Central Vermont Railway and United States immigration service at St. Albans, Vt.

Dorothy, a cute, blue-eyed tot, was born in New York eight months ago. Her mother, a Canadian, was ordered deported to Canada shortly after the child's birth. Immigration officials in New York placed the mother and child aboard a train for Montreal but at the border, Canadian immigration officials refused to allow the infant to enter Canada, ruling that she was likely to become a public charge.

Mother and child were returned to St. Albans and kept there two weeks as guests of the railway, while officials made strenuous efforts to solve the case, neither group of officers wishing to seperate the baby from her mother if it could be avoided.

However, an all-powerful immigration board decided the mother could not remain in the United States and an equally powerful Canadian immigration commission decided the infant could not enter the Dominion. With the decisions, the railway was called upon to transport the mother to Montreal, leaving the child in St. Albans in the custody of railway and immigration authorities.

Appeal was made to the St. Albans Board of Charities and this board decided it had no authority in the case, as Dorothy was born in New York. The appeal was carried to the Vermont State Charities Board, which ruled that the State of Vermont was in no way responsible for Dorothy. The case was then referred to United States Government legal authorities who officially said the United States was not responsible for Dorothy's care. A final appeal was carried to the New York states charities' officials, which resulted in a ruling by that body to the effect that the state was not responsible for the baby's care but that the New York board felt the community and state in which the child was abandoned should be held responsible.

EINSTEIN PLEADS FOR PEACE AND ZIONISM

Professor Albert Einstein, exponent of the theory of relativity, ended his eleven weeks' visit to this country and sailed on the Deutschland for Germany. He bade Americans a cordial "auf wiedersehen," declaring that he would return next year.

He made his last public appearance for the time being at a dinner March 3 in his honor at the Astor by the officers of the American Palestine Campaign. There he was hailed by Dr. Cyrus Adler as "the first intellect of our time—but withal so kindly and so human that we are not abashed in his presence."

Going directly from the dinner to the boat, Dr. Einstein for a few minutes before sailing chatted on his experiences in this country and observed, without the trace of a smile:

"I found many people in this country who understood my theory of relativity."

His greatest experience, he said, was meeting the scientists of America and getting to know and admire them.

"I want to add a few words of farewell as I leave the United States," he continued. "No person is worthy of the affection and esteem which it was my privilege to receive. While being conscious of this, I cannot but be highly appreciative of the friendship that has been bestowed upon me.

"I am deeply thankful to New York City and its Mayor, and to the authorities of the United States government, as well as the diplomatic representatives of Germany, for all the kindness that they have shown me. To all of you I extend a hearty farewell— auf wiedersehen."

Tanned and tired, the German scientist arrived with Mrs. Einstein at the Pennsylvania Station at 8:05 o'clock in the morning, enthusiastic over his trip to California and his discovery of America. He was laden down with Indian baskets, Navajo blankets, specimens of petrified wood, cactus plants, five fiddles given him by admirers, boxes of grapefruit and sundry trophies of his trip.

He faced interviewers and camera men with less trepidation than on December 11, the date of his arrival. At noon he addressed a gathering of members of the War Resisters' League on board the Deutschland, and advocated the utmost resistance to military training.

Despite his formal engagements Dr. Einstein took time off to discuss the so-called auto-synthetic life cell with its discoverer, Dr. George W. Crile, of Cleveland. He was impressed with Dr. Crile's conclusions, according to his assistant, Dr. Walter Mayer, and expressed the opinion that if they stood all tests they would be vastly important to humanity. He predicted that a combination of units smaller than the life cell would be worked out.

Both Dr. and Mrs. Einstein showed signs of fatigue and strain when they arrived at the Pennsylvania Station. It was explained that they had had a strenuous time in Chicago, their last stop. They were met there by Dr. Paul Schwarz, German Consul, and by William Egan, stationmaster.

Dr. Einstein showed considerable concern over his cactus plants, and pointed out a wicker basket which an old Indian woman had woven for him. He said he was much touched by this gift and that he was overwhelmed with the generosity he had encountered during his visit to this country.

When asked to pose for photographs, Dr. Einstein observed that enough had been taken to do him for the rest of his life. But he submitted to the cameras. He was wearing his customary large black hat on his flowing silver hair, and Mrs. Einstein was carrying a bouquet of roses.

Dr. Einstein said he had enjoyed his visit to America and had had more recreation than he had anticipated. He jested about the five violins he had received and remarked that a sixth had been offered him by telegram, a genuine Guarneri valued at $33,000. He refused this gift, remarking that he was not a sufficiently good violinist to use so precious an instrument.

"But, after all, I have only two hands and can play only one fiddle at a time," he said in German. "What's the use of having so many?"

Dr. and Mrs. Einstein were accompanied by Dr. Mayer and Miss Helene Dukas, the scientist's secretary. They motored straight to the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland, where they were received by Emil Lederer, director in charge of passenger traffic for the line; Captain George Tenner, operating manager, and Captain Frederick Buch, commander of the Deutschland.

The band was playing as Dr. Einstein stepped on board. More than 150 letters and telegrams were awaiting him. He had breakfast with Dr. Crile and Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey. Later he addressed a delegation of fifty from the War Resisters' League. Mme. Rosika Schwimmer acted as translator.

"The developments of the last year have again shown how little we are justified in leaving to governments the fight against the military spirit," said Dr. Einstein. "The events of the latest disarmament conferences have shown that the governments are either not willing or able to obtain real disarmament. It is the people who must express their desire for disarmament if they want it to be effective.

"I am convinced that the refusal to do military service should be backed. The pacifist movement in peace times is not dramatic enough to attract a great number of people. The lack of this kind of action is the great shortcoming of the pacifist movement. Such action, for instance, is the fight against military service. It is dramatic because it will inevitably create a fight, in so far as it challenges those who are opposed to us.

"It is too late when war breaks out. In the hysteria, the multitude will not resist. Only the most steeled person can be expected to resist in time of war."

Wayne White, a member of the Youth Committee on Peace, presented to Professor and Mrs. Einstein gold and silver buttons, inscribed 2 per cent. He explained that the "2 per centers" were young men and women of draft age who announce by wearing the button, that they will have nothing to do with war.

Dr. Edmund B. Chaffee was chairman of the delegation, acting on behalf of John Haynes Holmes, and Dr. Jessie Wallace Hughan, founder of the league, sat beside Dr. Einstein.

The professor lunched on the Deutschland with Dr. Schwarz and after a short rest went to the apartment of Dr. and Mrs. Schwarz at the St. Moritz. There he received some friends for tea and a delegation from the American Palestine campaign. Among those who called on Dr. Einstein, were Samuel Untermyer, Felix M. Warburg, Hugo Knipping, Mr. and Mrs. G. Sylvester Viereck, Dr. Gustav Heuser, E. B. Neumann, Dr. Albert Epstein, Mrs. Elsa Schmid and Dr. Emanuel Libman. Miss Helen Keller presented copies of her books to Dr. Einstein.

The dinner held at the Astor marked the beginning of a drive to raise $1,000,000 toward a fund of $2,500,000 which is being sought for the 1931 budget of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, in co-operation with the Palestine Foundation Fund. The cover charge for the dinner was $100 a person.

Dr. Einstein was enthusiastically received by the gathering of 700 persons and in a brief speech, which was broadcast over the WABC network, he said:

"Ten years ago, when I had the pleasure of coming to you for the first time in the cause of the Zionist ideal, almost everything still lay in the future. Today we may look back joyfully upon these ten years; for the united forces of the Jewish people have in this decade achieved a fine piece of successful constructive work —more, I believe, than we dared hope in 1921.

"Much still remains to be done, but of the ideals which Herzl cherished, one has already been realized: The work for Palestine has brought the Jewish people an undreamed-of solidarity and has imbued it with that optimism which every organism needs, if its life is to be healthy. Today this is manifest to all whose eyes are open.

"What we do in our common cause is done not only for our brothers in Palestine, but for the welfare and prestige of the entire Jewish people."

The following message received from President Hoover was read:

"I am glad of this opportunity to express my admiration of your distinguished service to mankind through your scientific researches and my hope that your visit to the United States has been as satisfying to you as it has been gratifying to the American people.—Herbert Hoover."

A testimonial book, expressive of American Jewry's affection for Professor Einstein, was presented to him at the dinner. It contained the names of all individuals and organizations participating in the function. Mr. Warburg, who presided, said that the audience was particularly fortunate to have "that great Jew, that marvelous scientist, that warm and beautiful heart, Professor Einstein," present before his departure for Europe.

Mr. Warburg, Dr. Adler, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Robert Szold and Morris Rothenberg all paid tribute to Dr. Einstein and outlined the campaign plans of the drive which opened with the testimonial dinner to the visiting scientist.

It was announced that the visit of Dr. Einstein to America would be commemorated by American Zionists in the planting of an Einstein forest in Palestine on the land of the Jewish National Fund.

Among the guests at the dinner were Professor Michael Pupin, William Fondiller, Paul Mazur, Hiram S. Brown, William Woodin, C. M. Woolley, Nathan Straus jr., William T. Cary, Charles E. Adams, William Nelson Cromwell, Dudley Field Malone, Martin W. Littleton, George Gordon Battle, Howard S. Gans, Clarence Y. Palitz, Herbert R. Limburg, Samuel W. Reyburn, Nathan Jonas, Lincoln Cromwell, Samuel C. Lamport, Otto R. Rosalsky, Jonah J. Goldstein, Samuel Mundheim, Edward Wilton Lloyd-Smith and Thomas Cochran.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor,
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

In view of the visit to this country of Dr. Judah L. Magnes, head of the Hebrew University at Jerusalem, it is of interest to examine the high lights in his pamphlet "Like All The Nations?" issued last year when hysterical critics were calling for his head because he had advised making peace with the Arabs instead of depending upon British force.

Dr. Magnes says in this pamphlet what he has been saying for many years that the Jew should want in Palestine: immigration; settlement on the land; Hebrew life and culture. Having obtained that he should be willing to yield the Jewish "state" and the Jewish "majority." Meantime there are now 900,000 people in the country of whom 160,000 are Jews. The question of immigration should be reserved constitutionally and an expert commission should have the say. In the situation of the fellaheen the Jews and Arabs could combine to solve a cardinal problem by helping the fellah to free himself of ignorance and debt, so that he will be happy, prosperous, and less easily inflamed against the Jews by lies. Among some Arab leaders one of the chief stumbling blocks is the recognition of Hebrew as an official language. But if the Holy Land is no place for an Arab National State or Government but for a bi-national country, it is not sufficient for Hebrew to be taught in the schools alone. It must permeate life.

Arabs and Jews should have not only the right but the duty of participating in practical ways in the government of their common Homeland and instead of an absolutist colonial regime the Government should make concessions as in Egypt and other places. The life of the country would be happier because, for one thing, participation in the government would bring into the light the nationalist extremist. As to the distinction between the right of the Jewish people to Palestine and the right of the Arab inhabitants, some contend that the two groups should be regarded as equals, the deeper claim of the Jewish Nation to their only territorial center offsetting the actual Arab majority.

Dr. Magnes does not agree with the contention that the one chance of Jewish survival is a large Jewish concentration in Palestine. The Dispersion and Palestine are both required for the fullest development of the Jewish people. The three chief elements in Jewish life are: the living Jewish People, some sixteen millions; the Torah (literature and religious, ethical and social ideals); the Land of Israel, one of the chief means of revivifying and deepening the People and the Torah. Palestine can help this People perform its great ethical mission as a national-international entity but this People does not need a Jewish State for the purpose of maintaining its existence. Palestine cannot solve the Jewish problem for the Jews. The Jews are not dying out, Dr. Magnes observes, despite their weaknesses, mixed marriages, ignorance of Judaism, and deterioration. Instead in America he sees them growing healthier and stronger in numbers and intellectual power.

At the dinner given in honor of Einstein at the Hotel Astor, New York, by the officers of the American Palestine Campaign, Felix Warburg announced smoothly that contributions should be in money, not pledges, and $200,000 was raised on the spot. What a cheering example this will be to the settlements in the hinterland! For New York City is the great Jewish center whence cometh all manner of inspiration to far-flung communities. It sets styles and changes patterns. The voices of Felix Warburg, Dr. Cyrus Adler, Rabbi Wise, Robert Szold and Morris Rothenberg came over the radio with a lack of bombast and fanatical screeching which it is hoped will some day be emulated everywhere once it is realized that the less laryngitis the more money. It was high time something was done about talking big and giving little. Otherwise the small giver may rebel, you know, at carrying the load that supports the big pledgers' honors.

The last thing Einstein did before his departure for Europe was the gracious act of appearing at the Palestine Campaign dinner and making a simple little speech. By his presence in America he did what he could for his people even when it was nothing more than the public declaration of his Jewishness. American-born Jews of small fame have refused to allow their names in a Jewish "Who's Who", willing to forget the subject of race and religion. Einstein, the product of an entirely assimilated setting, evidently finds it no strain to speak up and state the fact that he is a Jew and that his race has all his loyalty and devotion.

Every one fell in love with the diffident charm, the simplicity and goodness of heart so apparent in Einstein's manner and co-operation. The Hopi Indians, a little stumped by the phrase "the theory of relativity", nevertheless rallied manfully and made him Chief Big Relative! Wherever he went he got presents and trophies lavished not in recognition of scientific research but as a compliment to personality traits. This quiet, gentle, unwordly soul so took the American continent by storm that even the American Legion invited him to speak to them, a Jew, a German, and a pacifist! In a country where anti-Semitism engenders anxiety in the watchful Jew and where patriotism and imperialism are becoming a fetish, this plain, lovable fellow told them that war is no good at all and that people should refuse to do military service. Good at heart, gifted, great in achievement and essential character, he said it all with that disarming smile, the confidence of a child. The American Zionists are going to plant an Einstein Forest in Palestine. May the trees never be trampled down but grow ancient in strength; may they flourish like the cedars of Lebanon and lift their heads high forever as living monuments to all that is precious in human personality.

Historical Sketches

(Suggestions for these sketches will be received gratefully; also any additions or corrections.)

The name of the city of Toronto will be ever associated with the name of Prof. Goldwin Smith. Goldwin Smith can be justly designated as the father of all modern academic anti-Semitism. During his lifetime he was the most outspoken enemy of the Jewish race. Under his pen-name, "Bystander," he poured forth his wrath against the Jews for a period of fifty years and no occasion was passed over by him without bitterly attacking them.

In 1881 when the whole civilized world condemned the massacre of Jews by the Russian Government, Goldwin Smith, of Toronto defended the Czar's Government and said that the Jews received by the hands of the Russians exactly what they deserved. The poisonous doctrine spread by Goldwin Smith found many a disciple in Canada. When the whole world was aroused by the atrocities of the Kishineff massacre, the Canadian Parliament, too, took a stand in this matter and a resolution of sympathy for the Jewish people was introduced by Mr. McDonald, a Conservative member from Toronto. Henri Bourassa, in speaking against the resolution, laid particular stress upon the opinions of such an eminent authority as Prof. Goldwin Smith, whose words he quoted and reiterated that: "Whatever the Russians did to the Jews was only in retaliation, i.e., that the Jews exploited the Russians too long, etc., and it was only a merited reward that the Jews received, etc."

Goldwin Smith was, indeed, but a nineteenth century edition of the Haman of Biblical fame. Like Haman, who, in the words of the Bible: "Was full of wrath and he thought scorn to lay hands on Mordecai alone for they had showed him the people of Mordecai, wherefore Haman sought to destroy all the Jews," etc., so Goldwin Smith, too, turned sharply at the Jewish people because one of them attacked him.

The one to attack him was no less a personality than Benjamin Disraeli. Benjamin Disraeli not only sneered at Goldwin Smith and rebuked him but also styled him a "literary charlatan." Ever after Goldwin Smith used no diplomatic language in his attacks against the race from which sprang Benjamin Disraeli. Like Haman of old, Goldwin Smith, the eminent educator of Toronto, copied word by word the language of the former and throughout his life kept on repeating that: "There is a people scattered abroad, etc. Their laws are diverse from all people, neither keep they the King's laws; therefore, it is not for the King's profit to suffer them."

The strangest part in the career of this scientific Jew-baiter, whom Lucien Wolfe designates as the originator of anti-Semitism in the English-speaking world, is, however, the following fact.

When the first Holy Blossom Synagogue was built by the Jews of Toronto a considerable number of Christians had contributed towards the building Fund, among whom is to be found also the name of Prof. Goldwin Smith. By a strange irony of fate the man who preached the utter anihilation of the Jewish race, helped to erect a Synagogue; However, Goldwin Smith made the city of Toronto famous in Jewish history.

Rabbi Eisendrath's Editorial

famine, the United States government that so loathes the English "dole" is "lavishly" bestowing upon its self sacrificing husbandmen a bit of seed. We saw those queues of men, we saw their furrowed faces, we saw their hopeless eyes, we saw their despair — and yet some of our more liberal and truly humanitarian preachers, for some incomprehensible reason, see fit to fulminate against the horrors of Russan privation. And may we add that we were told on indisputable authority that there is "not a single barn, nor a single cowshed, not a single pig pen in these sorely stricken states that is not today housing human beings who have been driven mercilessly from their foreclosed farms." Such a situation is even more loathesome than that miserable relic of Czarist days — the "sleeping corners" as they were called — which the Soviet are at least trying to eliminate and to supplant with government homes. What is the magnanimous United States government doing for its dispossessed? A pound of flour and a handful of seeds!

If we remember rightly, one of the grand climaxes of Rabbi Brickner's address was reached in the solemn warning that Russia's triumph will spell an end to "dollar wheat." A shiver crept up and down the spines of his captivated hearers, who, strangely enough, actually believed that at that moment wheat was still selling at a dollar and that only the satanic "dumping" of the wicked Bolsheviki would drive it down. How unfair of so gifted a rabbi to have exploited such a cheap bugbear. Wheat has not been a dollar for some time past, and surely Rabbi Brickner knows that Russia's wheat export today is less than a third of what it was before the War, while Canada produces almost four times as much as she did then. Surely he, who is so well orientated in current problems, saw the results of the investigation into the Chicago grain market in September 1930 when this selfsame scare was raised, and when the Bulletin of the National City Bank (October 1930) concluded that "it is interesting to note that among the advocates of extreme measures to prevent the 'dumping' of foreign wheat in the United States are the leading advocates of the various proposals for 'dumping' American products on foreign markets. We confess to skepticism toward representations that under these circumstances they (the Soviet) deliberately and designedly sell their products for less than they might obtain. We doubt that they intend to enrich the capitalist countries by giving something for nothing or on any better terms than seem to be necessary. Nor are we very much alarmed about what they may do when they have developed their organization and become strong, efficient and well equipped." (italics ours). The National City Bank of New York is not perturbed by so-called Russian 'dumping,' nor even by the possible success of the Five Year Plan; it remained for a liberal rabbi to sound the alarm and to warn conservative Toronto that Russia's success meant an end to "dollar wheat" and all the havoc that that implied. But what kind of 'dumping' produced ten cent cotton and its attendant pauperization and starvation in the South?

Most regretable of all, however, was Rabbi Brickner's wholly gratuitous and heart rending description of that other bugaboo of Hamilton Fish and Toronto Globe fame—convict labor. How lugubriously did he dwell on its details. We have not been to Russia. Rabbi Brickner was there two or three years ago (not last year, as the press notices read.) May we merely quote from one who has been there six or seven times, including the summer of 1930. In his book just published, "The Challenge of Russia," Sherwood Eddy writes: "The total number of all convicts in Russia engaged in labor is very small, less than one per cent of Russia's working force. For the small fraction of her export trade she has no need to employ convict labor. Reputable American importers, who have visited the industries from which imports are derived, have described the labor conditions in affidavits and have denied the use of convict labor."

But such wholly reputable denials of the alleged widespread convict labor in Russia aside, might we once more ask these avatars of capitalism's more humanitarian methods to cast their eyes nearer home, where, under the delusion of freedom we countenance that most vicious system of tenant farming wherein men are mortgaged for life — body and soul; laboring 'neath the broiling sun, painfully producing their crops, receiving in return the bare necessities of life without touching ever a single piece of money. Convict labor indeed! What about tenant farming, or coming closer to home, what about some of our own wage slaves in factory and mine?

Rabbi Brickner was fairest when he traced the historic causes for Russia's anti-religious campaign, but even these splendid paragraphs were ruined when he added significantly: "But Religion is dying in Russia." And where is that kind of fundamentalist faith thriving? Are churches closing their doors in Russia and are priests in hunger? Well, let us drive through our American villages and count the number of little churches the doors and windows of which are tightly barred. And we have likewise heard it rumored that there are ex-ministers selling apples on the streets of New York City.

Most reprehensible of all, however, was Rabbi Brickner's conclusion, his reason why we ought not boycott or starve the Russian people. Not that such a procedure were inhumane, indecent or cruel; nor that it were alien to our religious idealism and common moral values, but because by so doing we would "kill the goose that lays the golden eggs;" we could "cut our nose to spite our face." Inasmuch as Russia is still buying more than she sells, it pays us to be friendly; we would only curtail our worldly profits by doing otherwise. How utterly ignoble. Of course, it must be remembered that Rabbi Brickner was talking to business men; practical; matter-of-fact, prosaic merchants; but is that really an excuse for a Rabbi in Israel descending to their own materialistic level, urging only the expedient, and failing utterly at least to attempt to lift them out of the commonplace toward the lofty and the ideal. This was the unkindest cut of all, and we were deeply grieved that our warm hearted and genial friend committed so grave a trespass.

Greater humility would have served him, and all the other indignant critics of Russia's experiment better. Things are far from right in our own lands. Wherefore, then, this despicable superiority complex which characterizes the whole of our American attitude toward other folk? Let us set our own houses in order ere we cast stones. Patiently waiting bread lines, quotas of food, dumping, convict labor, decadent religion — all in one guise or another desecrate our own soil. Humility, humility we need, and consecration to rectify our own glaring wrongs.

own preferences as between fundamentalism and liberalism in religion. Nevertheless, when you deliver sermons on subjects within the range of your own field, we are ready to accord you full respect and confidence. You are a doctor of divinity, and we take it that you are an expert in your own province. We contend, however, that when you wander away from your own preserve, you lose the protection of your cloak and you expose yourself to criticism on the merits of your position.

As suggested in our last article, we are not concerned with your views on Communism. We have read hundreds of articles dealing with the Russian situation from many angles. In view of the contradictory nature of the evidence, and having had no opportunity of gathering first hand information, we prefer to withold judgment on the subject. Where strict objectivity is impossible, pronouncements are largely a matter of personal bias or prejudice. We play safe and choose to have no opinions on the topic. Mr. Gibson's crass prejudice against Russian Communism is as good as somebody else's prejudice in its favor—both having to be taken for what they are worth. But we do know something about the Jewish people, and are interested in their life and welfare. We are in a position to gauge the degree of Dr. Gibson's knowledge when he presumes to deal with the subject of the Jews. We may therefore be pardoned for being amused to the spectacle of a pompous gentleman violently going through the spasms of uttering startling revelations when he is in reality venting hollow commonplaces.

TWO THINGS THE TOWN MUST HAVE

THE little prairie towns along the railway—there are two things they always have. One is the grain elevator. The other is the Imperial Oil branch station. Watch as your train goes through and you will see them—side by side.

They have to have both in the West. They must have an elevator to store their grain. And they must have oil and gasoline to help them sow and reap it, for the Western farmer runs his farm today with the efficiency of any other great industry.

Imperial Oil marched alongside the pioneer into the West. The farmer knows he can count on an Imperial Oil man to help him—anywhere, any time. And he knows that the gasoline and oil from Imperial tanks are the best he can get to do his job.

For fifty years Imperial Oil has been meeting new needs of transportation and industry.

Today its work is woven into the fabric of the country's progress—new efficiency for the farmer—caches for Arctic airmen—supply depots for the mines—service stations in every city and town—miles of tank cars—nine thousand men in its refineries, on its ships, in its laboratories, at its wells.

Fifty years of constant enterprise are in the products Imperial Oil sells today.

Marvelube is Imperial's finest motor oil.

Imperial Premier and Imperial Ethyl are its best gasolines.

Which means that nothing finer can be put in your car.
